Cook Bill Passes.

The Cook Bill, H. B. 323, authorizing Fiscal Courts to appoints four or more county commissioners to handle the proceeds of road bond issues voted for the construction of public roads, was passed by a vote of 34 to 0, in the Senate. This is the bill prepared in this county and its passage clears the way for the handling of the road bond funds as planned.

Louisville's population is now 265,000.

Gen. Von Lotterer, of the German artillery division, was killed in battle before Verdun.

If French reports are true, the Germans are advancing from one slaughter-house to another.

In his vote of confidence, President Wilson lost only 33 Democrats and gained 93 Republicans and one Progressive. It was a signal triumph.

Under cover of the fire of their fleet the Russians have made a landing on the Black Sea coast to the east of Trebizond, capturing the Turkish towns of Atiua and Maprava.

The Illinois Central must pay 1913 franchise taxes on $8,216,067, the Court of Appeals yesterday refusing to grant a new hearing. The court, however, reduced the assessment from $11,000, returned by the State board. Taxes already have been paid on $6,000,000.

Ten thousand dollars for a rescue home for girls is included in provisions of the will of Mrs. Jennie Hanson Helm, wealthy business woman of Lexington and Chicago, which was filed for record in Fayette County Court. The bulk of an estate valued at more than $100,000 is left to her husband.

S. M. Bradley, of Rowan, newly-elected Senator for the Thirty-fifth District, chosen at a special election to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator J. E. Stewart, of Rowan, appeared at the bar of the Senate Monday and took the oath of office. Senator Bradley brings up the Republican representation in the upper branch to ten.

There will be no special session of the General Assembly. This seems to be definitely determined upon, and a resolution will be introduced in the House providing for a tax commission to study the situation and prepare a bill, revising the whole tax system and carrying into effect the constitutional amendment to be reported at the 1918 session.

Col. E. H. Taylor, Jr., the Frankfort distiller, not only denied Tuesday that he had contributed $15,000 for Gov. A. O. Stanley's senatorial primary and $10,000 for his gubernatorial primary as charged by W. B. Harvey, but declared that he had made contributions in behalf of Senator J. C. W. Beckham, who was running for Senator as an advocate of State-wide prohibition.

Representative Harvey is in a fit of frenzy because the House refuses to take seriously his charges that Gov. Stanley's campaign fund was contributed to by liquor men. He has issued a statement he expressing emphatic dissatisfaction with the report exonerating him. He repeats his charges against Governor Stanley, supports them with an affidavit, and dares the governor to submit them to an investigation.

By a vote of 276 to 142 the house of representatives has tabled the resolution before that body which sought to warn Americans from traveling on armed merchantmen. As the senate had already taken action in favor of the administration, President Wilson's hands are now free to continue negotiations with Germany concerning that country's method of submarine warfare, and especially its announced intention to sink armed merchantmen without warning.

RENSHAW CASE IS ON TRIAL

Bubber Chafin and Ernest Wilson Are Facing Jury Second Time.

CASE IS HARD FOUGHT.

Strong Chain of Circumstantial Evidence Is Being Brought Out.

The second trial of "Bubber" Chafin and Ernest Wilson, negroes, charged with the murder of former Sheriff J. M. Renshaw, was begun in circuit court Monday. The jury was empaneled and adjournment taken till Tuesday when the taking of testimony was begun. At the former trial the defendants were given life sentences, but the higher court granted a reversal.

The first witness was Dr. J. B. Jackson, who attended Mr. Renshaw during the time he lingered with a bullet in his head. He said the shot was fired at close range, not over two feet, as shown by powder burns. There are a large number of witnesses who are giving about the same testimony as in the previous trial. Many of them saw two negroes skulking in the vicinity of the bridge where Mr. Renshaw was attacked as he drove by in his buggy. None of the witnesses could positively identify the prisoners as the men seen, but all said their general appearance at a distance was the same. The chain of evidence is being woven about them with scarcely a missing link. The case appears to be even stronger than before.

W. H. Stephens said he was on a hill near Judge Fowler's 400 yards away and heard the shot about 3 p. m. Gilbert Allen was in Fowler's tobacco patch and saw Renshaw pass and saw two men running out of the bridge.

Robley Rex was in a buggy with his father and grandfather and saw two men going down the river ledge. One large man wore a hat. A small one wore a cap and had his coat on his arm.

Ben King Harned, heard shot, had just met two negroes on bridge, one had a cigarette. Didn't know them. Met Renshaw just beyond bridge.

Mrs. J. J. Garrett saw two men on stone abutment. A woman that looked like Mattie Taylor was leaving the bridge.

Mrs. H. E. Dalton met Mr. Renshaw in his buggy humped up, lines down, hat off, helpless like a drunken man. Miss Cecil Dalton corroborated her.

J. R. Renshaw met his father's buggy 80 yards from Carroll's barn on pike. Was unconscious. Cared for him. Afterwards saw tracks of two men leading back to Tip Leavell's. Wilson dodged him after the shooting, exciting his suspicions. His father had about $20 in his pocket.

Judge W. T. Fowler saw the tracks and talked to Wilson about his shoes.

C. H. Johnson found Wilson's clothes at Eva Chafin's, including a pair of striped trousers and one shoe. Returning found shoe on fire burning. Arrested Chafin with Mabel Dawson. Charlie McGee and Ben Winfree told about the tracks seen.

Alex Tuck saw Chafin and Mattie Taylor at Wood's Mill lane (quarter mile west of scene of shooting) be-

FISCAL COURT OVERPOWERED BY PRISONERS

Tuesday With Financial Matters Receiving Attention.

The regular monthly meeting of the Fiscal Court was held Tuesday.

Miscellaneous claims amounting to about $1,350 were allowed, not including about $80 in poor house claims.

The sum of $25 was appropriated to provide premiums for the colored school fair.

It was ordered that the sum of $15 per month be allowed, until further order of the court, payable to the Kentucky Institution for the Education of the Blind at Louisville, for a blind boy, who is a citizen of Christian county and who has tuberculosis.

It was ordered that the sum of $5,000 be borrowed from the Bank of Hopkinsville, payable Dec. 1, out of the Road and Bridge fund.

The County Clerk was instructed to draw an interest bearing warrant for $10,000, payable to the Bank of Crofton to pay a warrant due March 1.

An order was made appropriating $2,000, payable out of the general fund, 1916, payable quarterly on order of Judge Knight, for poor fund, beginning Jan. 1.

tween 2 and 3 p. m.

Dave Killebrew working at Carroll's barn saw Wilson at 2:30 p. m. Had on blue jacket and light pants.

Gertrude McNutt saw both men together that morning. Chafin whistled and Wilson came to him.

Dock Beaumont said while in jail in an adjoining cell he heard Wilson say "You fired the shot, Bubber."

Ophelia Gholson said Chafin asked her to go with him to the fair, but she refused telling him she was a married woman. He then threatened her saying "I shot Mr. Renshaw, and if you don't go with me you won't do nobody else no good." This witness was questioned at great length, but stuck to her story. She would repeat Mr. Duffy's questions before answering, which caused him to ask the court to make her quit it. Judge Hanbery said it was evidently a habit he couldn't undertake to control.

Many other colored witnesses were examined, the trial proceeding slowly throughout the afternoon.

The witnesses were ruled out of the court room and are occupying other rooms in the building. There are more than 100 colored witnesses for the defense.

The prosecution is represented by Commonwealth's Attorney Denny P. Smith, County Attorney Ira D. Smith, W. T. Fowler and O. H. Anderson. For the defense the attorneys are J. C. Duffy, G. W. Southall and J. B. Allensworth.

Three Desperate Negroes Escape From Fayette County Jail.

Lexington, Ky., March 8.—Overpowering two guards, and taking the keys from one of them, three negro prisoners escaped from the Fayette county jail here last afternoon. The guards, G. W. Sherrod, turnkey, and R. H. Cropper, deputy jailer, were held by other prisoners until the three men had gotten to the street.

The men who made the daring escape are: Sam Armstrong, sentenced to a life term in the penitentiary for the murder of "Laughin Sal" Messiger, negro woman, on July 21, last year; Charles Thomas, sentenced to the penitentiary for housebreaking, and Robert Rice, held to the grand jury for attempted criminal assault on a white woman.

The delivery was accomplished when the deputies went to the cells for their usual afternoon lockup of the prisoners. A rag was thrown over Jailer Cropper's head and he was thrown to the floor. A towel was placed over Turney Sherrod's head. No violence was attempted, the prisoners only taking precautions to keep the jailers from making outcries for help.

After unlocking the lower door with keys secured from Turney Sherrod, the negroes stole past an open door, near which four other guards were playing pinocle. The game was not interrupted until several minutes later.

None of the negroes had been caught late last night.

POULTRY MEETING.

A meeting of the Christian County Poultry Improvement Association will be held at the H. B. M. A. this, afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, at which Mr. Slade, state agent, will be present. Ladies are especially invited, the meeting being held in the afternoon for their especial convenience. Mr. Slade will meet all who are interested in poultry.

JIM CROW LAW PASSED

Bitter Debate in Kentucky Assembly--L. & N. Wins In Big Battle.

Frankfort, Ky., March 8.—The common carriers, represented by the biggest aggregation of talent that has been seen in Frankfort this year, swept the platter clean in Tuesday's sessions of the general assembly. In the morning the Louisville & Nashville railroad stepped into the senatorial ring with the Western Union Telegraph company to renew the battle which it had lost in Federal court. An hour later it emerged victorious, Senator Sam Robertson's bill to prohibit the condemnation for other purposes of railroad rights of way having been passed by a count of 31 to 2.

In the afternoon the common carriers again scored heavily by the overwhelming defeat in the house of the Finn bill to extend the rate regulatory powers of the Kentucky railroad commission. This measure, demanded by the platforms of both the democratic and republican parties, was tabled, 52 to 32, on a motion of Representative Humphrey.

The administration suffered another defeat when Governor Stanley's plan creating a state tax commission to devise legislation for the revision of Kentucky's system of revenue and taxation was overwhelmed in the house by a crushing majority. The plan was embodied in a joint resolution which had been introduced by Representative Perry at the instance of the governor.

An identical resolution is pending in the senate. In view of the action of the house, however, it seems probable that a resolution offered by Senator Booles, which differs in some important particulars, may be adopted as it is indicated that it will be more satisfactory to members. The Booles resolution provides for a commission of nine members. Three to be appointed by the governor, three by the president of the senate and three by speaker of the house. Under this resolution the commission would be expected to report next fall.

When the senate met it took up the Knight "Jim Crow" street car bill, providing for a separation of the races in street cars in Louisville.

Senator T. A. Combs, of Lexington, wanted to know "if 90 per cent of the people of Louisville were in favor of a separation of the races in the street cars, as claimed by Senator Senator Knight, why it was that they were not afforded the relief by the general council of Louisville which had the power."

After a bitter debate the bill was passed, 18 to 12.

German Troops Reported to Have Suffered Extremely Heavy Casualties.

CORBEAUX WOOD CAPTURED

Penetrate French Redoubt But Are Driven Out by Counter Attack.

London, March 8.—Driving hard against the French line northwest and southeast of Verdun the Germans have been enabled to make additional gains toward Verdun, but extremely heavy casualties, according to Paris. Hill 265, to the southeast and a portion of Corbeaux wood, directly south of Forges, have been occupied by the Germans through strong infantry attacks that were preceded by extremely heavy bombardments. The town of Fresnes in the Woivre also has been captured.

The German attack was over the entire front west of the Meuse extending from Bethincourt to the river, but except in the Corbeaux wood and at hill 265, the French held back the attackers at all points. Thus the French still occupy the important strategic position on the heights of the Cote de l'Oie, for the possession of which numerous sanguinary engagements have been fought.

The occupation of a portion of the Corbeaux wood would indicate that the Germans have advanced over three miles since they took the town of Forges.

The Germans succeeded in penetrating a French redoubt in the region of Donaumont, but immediately were thrown out in a counter attack.

The recapture by the Germans of a position from the French in Champagne, the pushing of the Germans line farther forward in the Argonne forest and the expulsion of small British detachments from captured German trenches northeast of Vervelles are related in the latest German official report. The British are defending the famous Hohenzollern reboort position against German bombing attacks.

Despite the report from Rome that twenty German dreadnaughts have come into the North sea from their base at Kiel, and other reports which seemed to presage the imminence of a naval battle, nothing definite has come through to show that German warships are out maneuvering or seeking battle.

Chief of Police Robert Nolen, who was shot at Lebanon, Tenn., by Will Whitley, a negro, died Monday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock. At 8 o'clock that night, under the glare of the street lights and in the presence of over a thousand people, his slayer was hanged from a limb of a tree on the west side of the public square.

Eight hundred Austrian soldiers in barracks were killed or wounded in the raid made by Italian aeroplanes February 19 on the city of Laibach, according to information received at Geneva. Two high officers of the staff of Archduke Eugene, commander-in-chief of the Austrian forces operating against Italy, are said to have been killed. One of the Italian aeroplanes was destroyed.

The probe committee appointed to investigate "the charges and counter-charges" made by Representative Harvey of Webster county and Representative Pumphrey of Fleming county, during the recent statewide prohibition debate, submitted a unanimous report completely exonerating Harvey in connection with Pumphrey's charges. The submission of a unanimous report came as a great surprise to the house. It was generally thought the committee was hopelessly divided. The house, adopted the report without debate and discharged the committee.

Senator Ford's bill to regulate the admission of attorneys to practice law in Kentucky passed the senate by a vote of 20 to 4. An amendment offered by Senator Hilles and adopted strikes from the bill a provision that candidates for certificates must be fortified with academic training. A board of examiners on admission to the bar is created, the board to be composed of three members appointed by the Kentucky court of appeals. The board is empowered to examine all applicants for admission to the bar and will grant certificates only if candidates secure a general average of 75 per cent.

BRAZIL GETS A NEW BIBLE

Will Undoubtedly Prove a Great Aid to the Language as Well as Morals.

A new translation of the Bible into Portuguese has just been completed. Brazil, not Portugal, is the country where the larger part of this edition will be sent. Brazil is the greatest of Portuguese-speaking populations, although it used to be said that 10,000 users of that language lived around Honolulu, a city in Uncle Sam's territory. Maybe they all know English now.

Aside from its moral values, the Bible is particularly needed in Brazil, it is said, as an aid to preserving the standard forms of language. As a matter of history, no book has exerted an equal influence in lands where English is read and spoken. The phraseology of the King James version is interwoven through modern literature. Its general use on this continent, where new conditions and a strong tendency to slang would make for rapid change, has had a steady effect on our vocabulary.

It isn't likely that the classic beauty of the English Bible has been paralleled in Portuguese. But even a respectable rendering of a book which has proved its universal appeal in every land will help in more ways than one. Brazil is growing rapidly. Every means should be used to preserve its moral and linguistic standards.—New York Evening Sun.

Romance a la Cinderella.

Pretty Miss Edith Mervine of Philadelphia is only one of the millions of girls who have read the love story of Cinderella and then dreamed that their love story might be like unto it. But Miss Mervine is the one to whom the wish has been granted.

Two years ago Miss Mervine lost her slipper at a dance at Atlantic City. Paul A. Kimmins of Charleroi, Pa., found it on the dance floor. For several days the young man tried in vain to find the owner; he searched everywhere, but his efforts were unsuccessful. Finally, by accident, he heard of a young lady who had lost a slipper at a dance, and he called at her home to restore the tiny piece of footwear. The modern Prince Charming and the up-to-date Cinderella both underwent the old, old experience of love at first sight. The fire did not dim, either, for they were married a few days ago, and, hidden in the center of the bridal bouquet, was a little satin slipper.

China Book Ends.

Book ends are always interesting, and unusual ones are sought after as gifts for all occasions. There is a new set in china which is particularly pretty. The design shows one book lying flat, its covers of dark gray, with yellow edged leaves, and another book standing upright on the lower book, is partly open. The ends are quite heavy enough for all purposes, and the coloring of the china is particularly attractive.

MUST NOT BECOME MACHINE

Many Reasons Why Too Much Devotion to Habit is Bad for Individual Worker.

This force of habit is a good thing. It makes it possible for one to do a great deal of routine work with practically no exertion. Once the pattern is made, little attention is required. The brain acts almost automatically, moving hands and feet as may be necessary to accomplish the desired action.

But habit can be injurious, too. And by this I don't mean bad habits. I mean that the habit can be much overdone, and that when this happens initiative and originality die. You become little more than a machine, and though you may get through your allotted work perfectly, you are yourself fading out as an individual, losing interest in existence.

You girls whose work is pretty much all routine want to take care that habit doesn't make an end of you. A certain amount of routine labor is restful, and good for you. But keep from letting yourself sink into a day in and day out routine that requires practically no thought, hardly any attention. If your work tends to that sort of thing make yourself do it in new ways, watch out for short cuts, bring your mind to bear on all its details, try to seek better ways of doing what you are busy over. And if your work is really hopeless, then escape from habit as much as possible the rest of your time. Don't so much as go home the same way every day in the week, vary your amusements, take up some study on the side. Refuse at all hazards to atrophy your mind by falling into the unchanging habit of doing everything the same way, and thinking of everything the same way.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

GRAMMAR IN DECAY

MODERN CARELESSNESS OF DISTINCTION IS CRITICIZED.

Vocabulary Has Become the Despair of Dictionary Makers, But the Proper Usage of Words is Little Considered.

Whether our speech is to serve us as a mitten or as a glove depends on the pains we are willing to take with distinctions like those in "should" and "would," "what" and "that," "the boy's" and "of the boy," a writer in the Boston Herald observes. For our thought, both in seeing things and in mulling them over, is far subtler and more finely shaded than the corresponding string of words that we address to our friends; in such expression as we can reach, we depend on the trim distinction of our grammar as directly as the typist on the distinctions of her keyboard or the wood carver on the differences of his gouges. To lose from good usage even one well-based grammatical distinction is to lessen by just that amount our means of matching our thoughts with our words.

Unhappily our careless use of the mother tongue is confusing forms and dropping distinction that even colloquial wording can ill spare. Our enormous vocabulary grows faster than the dictionary makers can issue appendix and new edition; but our grammar, like an aging tree, is decaying at the tips. Take for instance "would" and "should." Here in New England the distinction lingers. In the middle West and beyond "would" has hopelessly merged with its own service that of "should." The smoother phrases "I would like" and "I would be grateful" already appear in formal writing, and only the verbalist is vexed. The distinction of "who" from "that," for all the good examples in the talk of street and shop and in the common version of the Bible, is as good as gone from our modern books. In "a running fight," "by running a race," "I saw John running," "I saw John's running," how many of us can tell apart, as adjective, infinitive, participle and verbal noun, those four "runnings"? Is it any wonder that we are letting slip the good distinction between "He didn't like Tom interrupting" and "He didn't like Tom's interrupting"? A graver loss has come of our laziness with subjunctive forms. Our school children think us quaint when we say, "If he were" or "Wherever it be." Shades of Demosthenes and Cicero! What could even the orators have done had Rome and Athens dulled their stiletlike subjunctives into blunt indicatives?

Language is the world's oldest wonder. No one really knows how it began or how it attained its structural perfection. The Greek grammar was finer than the Roman; the Sanskrit finer than the Greek. Language is the one taking argument for a prehistoric golden age. Its laws have been studied and named and marveled at by men like Grimm and Mueller and our own Whitney as if human speech had some mysterious life of its own. The least rest of us can do is to pass it to the next generation with the least possible damage from our own using.

Specter of Pauperism.

Do you know that in the United States 66 out of every 100 people that die leave no estate whatever? Do you know that out of the remaining 34 only nine leave estates larger than $5,000, and that the average of the balance of 25 is a little less than $1,300? Do you know that at the age of sixty-five, 97 out of every 100 in America are partly or wholly dependent upon relatives, friends or the public for their daily bread, for their clothing and for a roof under which to sleep? We all know that the one safeguard against pauperism by the countries of Europe has been thrift, S. W. Strauss of Chicago writes in Leslie's. France, Germany, Belgium, Holland and Switzerland have been the leaders in thrift. Do you realize that according to recent government statistics, 98 per cent of the American people are living from day to day on their wages, and that a loss of employment would mean pauperism for all but two per cent of us?

They Could Get Along.

Hank O'Day, the old National league umpire, was working a game single-handed one afternoon, his partner having met with some accident. It was very warm, the players were unusually quarrelsome, and Hank was quite peevish.

"Hey, Hank!" yelled Heine Zimmerman from the third base coaching line, as a batsman hit a foul up against a concrete wall, and the ball was tossed back into the diamond, "take a look at that ball, Hank! Take a look at it!"

"What for?" demanded Hank, surlily.

"Why, it may a-got cracked against 'at wall," said Heine. "We can't play with a cracked ball."

"Well, I dunno," said Hank. "We're going along pretty well with a lot of cracked ball players."

What She Thought of It.

"I saw you at the concert last night."

"Yes; me and Hiram are both so fond of music, you know."

"What did you think of Sawmore's technique?"

"Well, to tell you the truth, I didn't notice it; but I thought his fiddlin' was just grand."

Insects' Taste for Blood.

Insects whose ancestors for many generations have never tasted blood will seek it with the utmost keenness if an opportunity presents itself. The vast majority of the mosquitos of all species (which are said to number probably 1,000) continue to exist and to reproduce their kind on purely vegetable diet. As a rule the blood-seeking habit is confined to the females, but in the case of a few species it is said to be common to both sexes. The taste for blood is stimulated by the heat. Some of the species are never met with near houses but are confined to the deep recesses of forests and woods, and these never have an opportunity of tasting blood.

RETURNING HOME

After 20 Years Spent In Chinese Mission Work.

News has been received in Owensboro that Miss Julia K. McKenzie will sail March 17, from China on her way back to America. She is said to be completely broken down in health, and her friends very much fear that she will never live to reach her native land.

She has been a missionary to China for more than twenty years, only returning home once during this entire time. She and her co-worker, Miss Mary Moorman, are two of the most efficient and successful missionaries in the entire foreign field.

She was first sent as a missionary by the First Baptist church of this city, but when the Third church was organized, she united with that, and to a large extent has been supported by it ever since.

Besides being such a splendid Bible scholar, Miss McKenzie knew a great deal about medicine and household arts. She was a brilliant conversationalist, and might have made a name for herself along literary lines.—Owensboro Messenger.

The world has been invited to toast peace and the Panama-California International Exposition at noon of March 18, Dedication Day of the 1916 Exposition. The following request has been sent by President G. A. Davidson, of the Exposition to prominent men and organizations in all parts of the world:

JOIN IN A TOAST TO PEACE AND AN EXPOSITION OF PEACE.

"Formal dedication of the Panama-California International Exposition will be held March 18. Nineteen nations, U. S. possessions, Western states and California counties are joining in San Diego to promote every fruit of civilization that is being destroyed in the other hemisphere. At noon of March 18, in the name of the directors of the 1916 International Exposition, I ask that you join in a toast that our Exposition fulfill the highest obligations that can devolve on a people's Exposition of progress.

VICK'S VAPORUB SALVE

WOMAN'S RELIEF CORPS

By LOUISE OLIVER.

"Dear Connie:
"Can you come to dinner Friday? I have an extra girl, and as usual I need a man. Connie, dear, don't think I'm asking you for the tenth time this season just because I am so fond of you; such of course we all are. But it is because you are such a darling to fill in. What would we do without you?"

"Faithfully yours,

"Belle."

"P. S. "Don't tell the story about the flamingo. I simply can't laugh at it again. I can say it backward in my sleep. Hunt up a new supply."

"Well, I like that," laughed Connie Collins good naturedly as he laid aside the note and resumed his grapefruit. "One thing about Belle—she's candid." He sighed. "So I'm to supply again! It seems to me I've developed into a regular married woman's relief corps."

He finished his coffee and went to the office where he called up his prospective hostess for Friday.

"Hello, Belle! I got your note. Count on me. Yes, sure. No, I'll not tell the flamingo story another—what's that? Oh, she's pretty, is she? That's encouraging. Say, Belle, have some of that crab meat again, will you? All right—good for you! I'll be there sure."

When Friday night came and Connie was presented to the young person he was to take in to dinner, his first impulse was to hunt up his hostess and weep tears of joy and thankfulness upon her shoulder. Miss Maywell—such was her name—was a vision of sweet delight.

At dinner his hostess kept nodding and smiling at him as much as to say, "It's your reward, Connie, for a long period of martyrdom."

Then gradually—so imperceptibly that no one noticed it for a while—the air, heavy with the scent of American Beauty roses, became pungent, a blue haze began to fill the room and finally an eddy of smoke trailed across the low circle of light thrown by the candles.

"Fire!" a woman breathed convulsively and the guests sprang to their feet. Belle's husband, Max Wells, threw open the door into the hall. There was a solid wall of white smoke.

Dorothy Maywell laid a hand on Connie's arm. "Do you think it's upstairs?" she whispered. "I—I've got to go up and get some things if it is."

"You mustn't think of that," he insisted kindly. "Lives first, you know." He laid his hand reassuringly over the one resting nervously on his arm. "But I've got to. Doesn't anyone know where it is?"

Then, before he realized what she was doing, she dashed a glass of water over a napkin, caught it up to her face and was out of the door, through the wall of smoke and tearing up the stairs.

Connie was at her heels, but he could not stop her. There had been no time for him to protect himself, and the smoke in his eyes and lungs strangled him, but he kept on.

Upstairs the smoke was less dense. Dorothy ran along the hall and into a room at the right.

"You can't come in," she called. But Connie, with eyes alert for flames, paid no attention.

"Hurry!" he urged. "Get what you want. But for heaven's sake hurry!"

She flew to a bureau, opened a small top drawer, got something that looked like a card, slid it into the front of her gown and faced him. "I—I'm ready!" she choked.

Connie's eyes were smarting so he could scarcely see. But they groped their way along the hall, keeping as close to the floor as possible. They almost fell down the stairs. In another instant they were outside on the porch just as the firemen arrived.

The men rushed into the smoke-filled house, upstairs, down cellar, garretward—yet there were no flames, only a dense, acrid smoke.

"No fire in the house at all," yelled someone. "It's all coming out of the registers. Something wrong with the furnace."

So to the cellar they went and found a piece of damp carpet smoldering in a disused furnace.

Open windows soon cleared the house sufficiently for the guests to return to their coffee.

As Connie placed Dorothy's chair for her, he noticed a white square on the floor. He picked it up and saw—his own photograph, with something written on the back! In an instant it was in his pocket. In some way he knew it was what Dorothy had been so frantic to rescue. It was very puzzling! Instinct told him, too, that she must never know he had discovered it.

This was what was written on the photograph, and what Connie felt he was entitled to read before he put a match to it at bedtime:

"I love his eyes. I love the way the hair waves over his left temple. I love the cleft in his chin, and his firm, strong mouth. I wonder if I shall ever know him."

Connie went to bed too happy to sleep. "After all," he reflected, "there's some advantage in being a supply. But I'm afraid Belle will have to hunt up another handy man. I'm gone!"

Split Threatened.

A. T. Hert of Louisville and his friends are contesting the election of J. W. McCullough of Owensboro, who was apparently elected at a meeting held at 2 o'clock Friday morning in a room at the Seelbach hotel. The Hertites charge the call was not official and challenge two of the votes by which the Daviess county man claims his right to the place.

But the complications growing out of the Phoenix Hill state convention held in Louisville Wednesday do not end there. Negroes of the state, who cast 85,000 votes for the log cabin party, are up in arms because they are to be represented at the national convention in Chicago by only one vote.

A call was issued Saturday by the Republican Pacific and Political league, a negro organization, for a second republican state convention in Lexington, Mar. '9. George W. Gentry of Stanford is president of the organization.

Six Pounds Butter Daily.

The champion Holstein cow is almost entirely white in color, but she is nevertheless a pure-bred and is registered. Her name is Ormsby Jane Segis Aaggie, and she is owned by a New York breeder, who purchased her about two years ago for $250. She now claims title to the world's one-day, seven-day and thirty-day milk record for all breeds. Her record for 30 days is 3,050 pounds of milk which tests enough to make six pounds of butter per day. A four-year-old, she is large even for the Holstein breed, weighing about 1,500 pounds. She is now trying to break the world's yearly record.

"It is said," he remarked reflectively, "that women's hands are growing larger."

"Well?" she returned inquiringly. "Yes," he asserted. "And the worst of it is that there is every likelihood that this tendency will continue."

"Yes?" she said in the same inquiring tone.

"Yes," he repeated. "You see, driving and golf, and tennis, and other sports that women have recently taken up are responsible for it."

"In that case," she said with a glance at her own dainty hands, "you'd better speak quick if you want a small one."

He realized that it was the opportunity of a lifetime, and he therefore spoke promptly.

Converted in New York.

Samuel W. Tompkins, former Owensboro boy, has been converted and is now a minister of the gospel. The news of Mr. Tompkins' conversion reached Owensboro a few days ago, when he wrote a letter to C. W. Bransford, from his home in New York, giving the details of the conversion which took place one night in New York while Tompkins was attending services in "The Bowery Mission." Mr. Bransford was so much interested in Tompkins letter, that he immediately wrote to Rev. John G. Hallimond, superintendent of the Mission Chapel, and has just received a reply to his letter. Rev. Hallimond confirmed the news of Mr. Tompkins' conversion, and stated that the Owensboro man was doing great work for Christ. He also paid a high tribute to the great eloquence of Mr. Tompkins, who is now drawing large crowds at a revival meeting held at Long Branch, N. J.—Inquirer.

Insecticide Exploded.

A barrel of "bug juice" blew up in the El Paso jail starting a fire that cost 18 prisoners their lives. Surgeons say the death list probably will reach twenty.

When a burst of flame blew out the windows and doors, a number of victims dashed into the streets bare from head to foot, one of the victims a veritable torch, plunging through the jagged remains of a window, gained the jail roof, where he expired. A number of prisoners were blinded. Albert Curlew, of Louisville, was seriously burned.

In 1915 there were 84,000 deaths in the United States from pneumonia.

Much Esteemed Lady Passes Away at Her Home in Lafayette.

Mrs. Sallie B. Griffin, widow of the late Jack Griffin, died at her home in Lafayette Tuesday morning at 1 o'clock, after an illness of about a week of pneumonia. She was a daughter of the late Col. She leaves two children, John Griffin, of this city, and Mrs. Kenneth Stowe, of Lafayette. She is also survived by three brothers and one sister, as follows: W. E. Anglin, of this city; Sam Anglin, of Barlow, and Charles Anglin and Miss Jennie Anglin, of Clarksville.

Baby Week.

"Baby Week" is the outcome of a movement originating in Chicago two years ago, which had for its object the care and protection of the infant child. Since that time, the idea has spread all over the United States and to the insular possessions.

The "Baby Week" movement is purely an educational campaign. It was officially inaugurated by the general federation of woman's clubs, and sponsored by the mothers' congress.

The national government has set aside a week each year for the baby, and is now making plans for a nation wide campaign, the like of which has not been seen in this country or in any other. The object is to give to parents an opportunity to learn the best that science and common sense can dictate in the development of the child, and to impress upon each community the necessity of public infant welfare activities.

By holding that the States have the power to impose taxes, large or small, on trade coupons redeemable in premiums, the Supreme Court put the legality of premium advertising by which it is estimated $125,000,000 worth of merchandise is sold annually within the scope of State laws. The widespread practice of giving coupons with cigars, cigarettes and tobacco, or premium slips or trading stamps with other merchandise, was thus held to be entirely under the control of the States.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

AUNT ADDIE'S CONSENT

By ERNE STURGIS.

Gwen saw him as the car rolled up to the station platform. He was standing over near the express office talking to Batty Madison and he raised his cap to her with the cheerful, ingenious smile of one who has overlooked the past.

Very, very slightly she had bowed her head, so slightly that the curling pheasant-tail feather hardly wavered in the air. Her mother was busy giving last injunctions to the chauffeur.

Clifford glanced at her several times before it really dawned on him that she was still provoked at him. Then he tried to remember what had caused it.

They had decided, first of all, not to fall in love. That had been in the summer when she had gone to the shore. If he could just promise to be a good pal and steer away from the sentimental she'd love to be not exactly a sister to him, but a sort of second cousin.

And then right out of the blue sky there had dropped—Dick. It had almost seemed part of the summer routine that Dick should appear sooner or later. But there had been trouble between them, and the day she had been swept out to sea past the lifelines it had been Dick who had swam to the rescue and brought her back.

"But you needn't have treated him the way you did just for that," Clifford had said, most disagreeably. "I've saved lots of girls' lives, but they didn't act as if I was a hero."

"I didn't," Gwen had answered pleasantly. "I just treated him like a dear old friend. I've known Dick for years." "And you've known me just six weeks. Which do you like the best so far?" It was impossible to stay angry very long with Cliff's good-natured face smiling at one. They had really been wonderfully good friends until he had stepped over the border land of good faith and proposed to her.

"I don't suppose you can help it, but I'm so sick and tired of playing heart balm for every boy I know. They all propose sooner or later just from habit, I do believe, or because they know I won't accept."

"Why won't you?"

"Don't you really know? Uncle Stanhope left all his money to his favorite sister, Aunt Adelaide, and she's an unbeliever in men"—Gwen's brown eyes were sparkling with fun. "So she put half in trust for me until I was twenty-one on condition that I didn't marry by then and the other half when I am thirty on condition that I am not married then."

"What if you do?"

"It all goes to some charity. She's very peculiar."

"If you really loved the right man, you'd throw the whole thing up in the air," Cliff had returned. "I never would have thought you were mercenary."

That had been in late August. Now it was December and he was visiting Batty Madison. She had seen him several times, but that one word would come between them. He had suggested that she was mercenary. Today she waited until her mother and Aunt Adelaide were comfortably settled in the chair car before she even permitted herself to remember that the only man she had ever really missed was in the next car.

It did seem as if Aunt Addie was unusually trying. She wanted to recline, then she wanted to go out on the observation and get a breath of fresh air, then she wanted some cracked ice, and finally she wanted to play bridge. It was five hours to Boston and she simply couldn't stand it without some diversion, and she wished she hadn't come anyway. Just then she beamed radiantly on somebody coming along the aisle, and lo! it was Cliff.

"Well, it isn't Cliffie Bigelow," she exclaimed. "Come here, child. I've known him, Gwen, since he was knee high to a toadstool; lived next us at Weston for years when your uncle was alive. How's your mother, Cliffie? Doing pretty well for her age, isn't she? Sit down and take a hand, for pity's sake."

Gwen never forgot those five hours. It seemed as if Aunt Adelaide was possessed to make her unhappy. She told stories of Cliff when he was a little boy and a big boy, and how he had saved her life once when old Gray Eagle took fright at the morning express and ran away with her and Cliff had stopped him.

"You know, as long as we're going out home for a few weeks, I kind of think I'll have you stay with us, Cliff. The folks will be up in Boston, and the house is all closed up. You're going to Weston, ain't you?"

"Why, no, ma'am. I was on my way to Boston—"

"Nonsense. Come along with us. Maybe you and Gwen can comfort each other, for I declare she's the mopiest girl I ever saw since last summer. Go out on the platform, you two, and see if we're near Providence yet. I want to get a look at Providence."

They stood together on the observation platform, and Gwen was laughing—biting her lip to keep from it, but laughing.

"Suppose we had been married and I'd have had the money to chase after gypsy moths?" Clifford leaned against the door and looked at her. "Isn't she a regular old dear, though? I never knew she was your aunt. I take it back, Gwen, about your being mercenary."

NEW OFFICERS

Of Hopkinsville Lodge No 545 B. P. O. E.

The following officers were elected Tuesday night by the Elks: Exalted Ruler—V. E. Barnes. Esteemed Leading Knight—Joseph C. Slaughter.

Esteemed Loyal Knight—Ira D. Smith. Esteemed Lecturing Knight—P. A. Steel.

Secretary—T. C. Underwood. Treasurer—Bailey Russell. Tiler—Edward J. Duncan.

Trustee for three years—Walter A. Radford. Grand Lodge Representative—Thomas L. Morrow.

Alternate Representative—Edward J. Duncan.

TAHAN'S STORY.

His father, a white man, a noted United States scout, known from Oregon to Mexico as "California Joe," and his mother, in whose veins was a strain of Indian blood, had their cabin home in a settlement on the frontier where the city of Gainesville, Texas, now stands. A band of Kiowas raided the settlement and massacred or carried into captivity all the people. His mother was alone with him, a babe of two years, when the attack came and she was killed, and left him playing in a pool of blood on the floor. A young warrior snatched him up to dash his brains out but instead saved his life through a superstition aroused when the baby clung tenaciously to his long hair.

When the chief Zepkko-eete returned to the camp and dropped the half dead child into the arms of Tsilta, his wife, and said, "Here is a present for you, my wife," she asked, "Where did you get him, my husband?" "In Texas," he replied. "Then," she said, "his name shall be Tahan," that is, Texas man. So the child took his place in the old rawhide tepee without knowledge of his real parents and learned to love Zepkko-eete and Tsilta who educated him in all the ways of the Indian; playing, feasting, starving, fighting, hunting, as they did; his foster mother loving him as dearly as her own children, teaching him to pray to the gods and to reverence her husband, a war chief. The story of his career as a scout, his conversion and rise to the platform is very interesting.

Should Use All Faculties.

Everything that a man undertakes to produce, whether by action, word or in whatsoever way, ought to spring from the union of all his faculties.—Goethe.

China's Cheap Nobility.

After the re-establishment of the monarchy, Chinese emperors will receive $12,000 gold, as an annual allowance granted because of their rank. This decision has just been reached by the government, and a mandate setting it forth is to be issued in a few days. Princes will each receive $8,000 gold, annually. The allowance for a duke will be $4,800. Marquises of the first, second and third classes will receive $4,000, $3,200, $2,400, respectively. The allowance to a first-class earl will be $2,400. An earl of the second class will receive $1,500 and one of the third will be paid only $1,200 and so on through the lower ranks. Yuan Shi-kai has issued a mandate addressing the son of the murdered Admiral Tseng Ju-cheng as marquis, and has ordered the young man to report to Peking for service on the bodyguard.

"Girls" at Age of Thirty-Five.

Cheer up, spinsters. You are still young even if you're thirty-five and melancholy. Shake the latter feeling and laugh youthfully, for the members of the Brick Presbyterian church have solved the age problem for "girls." Yes, it's true, says a New York correspondent of the Pittsburgh Dispatch. You are still a girl at thirty-five. This is the age limit they set for admission of boarders to the new William A. Barbour Memorial dormitory for self-supporting young (notice the "young") women. The age limit to the membership is one of the new laws laid down for the management of the new home. The building will be seven stories high and will accommodate 120 young women as regular boarders.

Socks Went Astray.

"A young woman in Vancouver put a note in a pair of socks she had knit asking the soldier who got them to write her. She received a letter from a man in a northern logging camp stating that he had bought the socks for 65 cents," says the Rocanville (Sask.) Record.

Adair and Goodrich.

Early primary returns in Indiana showed an extremely close race between Harry S. New and James E. Watson for the Republican nomination for United States Senator, with New probably 10,000 ahead in Marion county, but Watson running in the lead in the State. Goodrich is ahead in the Republican gubernatorial contest and J. A. M. Adair leads the Democratic race for Governor. The votes was light, the new primary law unpopular and returns slow.

New Officers.

The directors of the Pennyroyal Fair met and elected officers for the ensuing year as follows:

President—S. L. Cowherd.

Vice President—Holland Garnett.

Treasurer—Lee Ellis.

Secretary—John W. Richards.

The only change made was in the vice presidency where Mr. Garnett succeeds M. C. Forbes.

M. A. Mason, who was recently elected as a director, resigned that position and J. M. Neblett was elected to the vacancy.

Likely to Go Hungry.

An old Cheshire woman called to her lord and master: "Jabez! Will t' coon t' th' baggin?" "Baggin" in Cheshire means dinner. "What's use? Ah canna find my old weskut." "Well, it's warm enough—Tha can eyt wi'out th' old weskut." "Nay; that Ah canna. Ah've left my false teeth i' t' pockets." "Then tha'll ha' to starve. Ah gave that weskut to t' ragman this mornin'."—London Mail.

PRINCESS TO-MORROW.

"The Christian," from the romantic novel by Hall Caine in eight reels, featuring Earle Williams and Edith Storey, will be seen at the Princess Friday.

One of the best features about this intensely thrilling photodrama is the entire absence of cheap melodrama.

The story deals with John Storm, son of Lord Storm, who renounces his father's plans to place him in parliament. He is filled with sublime purpose of duty to his fellow men. Hall Caine describes him as a "modern apostle" who is ruled by his heart.

The woman of his heart is Glory Quayle, "a runaway, but withal possessed of a depth of character rare."

Glory finds life irksome in her home on the Isle of Man and is easily persuaded to go to London with her friend Polly, who falls a victim to the influence of a notorious Lord Ure.

The real greatness of Glory's character shows when Polly is deserted by Ure. Glory obtains a position as singer in a music hall.

But the moments of dramatic sublimity are reached when Storm goes to London and founds a mission near the place where Glory sings.

The tragic moments when Polly ends her miserable life and the scene where Storm, half crazed by the destruction of his mission, must be seen to be appreciated.

"The Christian" forms an ideal vehicle for Earle Williams as John Storm and Edith Storey as Glory Quayle. Northrup plays the part of Lord Ure with all the finesse of his excellent characterization of "villain" roles.

March Weather.

Another snowstorm early yesterday morning, with much wind and little snow, gave spring another severe backset. The day was cold and blustery, making it extremely unpleasant to be out of doors.

RATHER SPOILED THE EFFECT

Lawyer's Eloquent Address Nullified When His Opponent Related a Little Fable.

A barrister who was possessed of an unusually loud voice was making an eloquent address to a jury. His case was fairly strong, and his trumpet tones made the rafters ring. The jury looked thoughtful and much impressed.

The opposing barrister had a face like a hatchet and a thin, low voice. He began: "As I listened to the thunderous appeals of my learned opponent I recalled a fable. A lion and an ass entered into a compact to slay the beasts of the field and share the spoils. The ass was to go into the thicket and bray and frighten the animals out, while the lion was to lie in wait and kill the fugitives. Well, the ass sought the darkest part of the jungle, and, lifting up his awful voice, brayed and brayed and brayed. The ass was intoxicated with his own uproar and thought he'd return to see what the lion thought of it. He found the lion pale in the face and trembling. 'What do you think of that for braying?' said the ass. 'Don't you think I scared them?' 'Scared them?' repeated the lion in an agitated tone. 'Why, you'd have scared me if I didn't know you were a jackass!'"

As He Saw the Play.

"Oh, do tell me something about the play last night. They say that climax at the close of the third act was simply grand," she said.

"Yes, I am inclined to think it was very good," he replied, without any marked degree of enthusiasm.

"Can't you describe it to me," she continued, beaming radiantly.

"Why," explained he, "the heroine came stealthily on the stage and knelt, dagger in hand, behind a clump of blue ribbons. The hero emerged from a large bunch of lilacs and as soon as she perceived him she fell upon him, stabbed him twice, and sank half-conscious into a very handsome aigrette. This may sound a trifle queer, but the lady in front of me came in late for the performance and became so intensely interested that she forgot to remove her hat, and that's how it looked to me."

Low Aim in Life.

The man whose eyes are nailed, not on the nature of his act, but on the wages, whether it be money or office or fame, is almost equally low.—Emerson.

MAINTAIN PRIVACY OF "DEN"

Important Part of House Is That in Which One May Be Free From Intrusion.

No man or woman feels absolutely satisfied with his or her home in these days unless he or she, or both, have a "den." Therefore every architect who plans a house provides for at least one room to be used as a "den," and if possible he takes care that both Mr. and Mrs. shall have their own private "dens."

But on the word "private" the architects do not always put sufficient importance. The "den" should be in every sense of the word private, and to make it so it should be so located in the house as to be apart from and not easily entered from parlor or living room or front hall, or any other room which is in constant use.

A certain suburbanite has what he supposed was to be his "den," but one cannot enter the living room from the front hall without passing through this "den," the result is that there is absolutely no privacy in the "den," and, more than this, nine times out of ten, when his wife has callers in the evening, the "den" proves more attractive to all in the house than does the living room or the parlor, with the result that Mr. Suburbanite, if he desires a private hour for reading or writing, must hike to the kitchen or some other part of the house and leave the wife and callers in undisputed possession of what was supposed to be his own nice little private "den."

By all means have a "den," and by all means see that it is private, even if you have to build it in the cellar or out back of the house.

VICK'S Ointment and SAVOR FOR ALL COLD TROUBLES

NOT HARMFUL TO THE BIRDS

Spraying Fluids Have No Ill Effect, Is the Assertion Made by Eminent Zoologist.

Spraying fluids used on orchard trees do not kill the birds as well as the bugs, Prof. H. A. Surface, state zoologist of Pennsylvania, recently declared in an effort to upset a theory encouraged in some important circles.

This authoritative statement from Professor Surface ought to be regarded as conclusive and set at rest the doubts of many readers of this page.

"I have watched this subject with the greatest care in thousands of sprayed orchards in Pennsylvania," the noted zoologist said, "and I am prepared to say with certainty that I never have known of a case of a bird being killed by spraying or having been found dead under circumstances that justify the suspicion that this was the cause of its death.

"We have examined the stomach of dead birds and have found no evidence of arsenic to which their death could be attributed.

"I live in the midst of one of the largest orchards in Pennsylvania, which has been sprayed frequently, and it is full of birds' nests. I am sure that if spraying were destructive to birds they would not be nesting in this orchard.

"It is well known that the amount of arsenic necessary to kill an insect will not kill a bird, and also the birds will not eat dead insects. It would be necessary for the bird to eat a great many beetles to take enough poison to affect it in the least."

Marketing for the White House.

Mrs. Wilson, as Mrs. Galt, was in the habit of going down to Central market two or three times a week and doing her own marketing. After the announcement of her engagement she gave that up, as she found the amount of attention attracted embarrassing. She will find that the housekeeper in her new home has the marketing habit, and will see to it personally that her mistress has just exactly what she wants. The present housekeeper, Mrs. Jeffray, was installed by Mrs. Taft, who, at the beginning of her regime, took her housekeeper to the great market and personally introduced and instructed her. For Mrs. Taft, too, had the marketing habit, and if while at the White House she found it expedient to do it by proxy, she saw to it from the start that it was done according to her own ideas.

Gertie (who has just been kissed by Arthur under the mistletoe, which he discovered hanging in the hall)—Oh, Arthur, you wicked wretch, to take advantage of me like that! I wish I knew how hung it there; I'd pay them out, that's all.

Arthur (to little brother later in the evening)—Tommy, I'm going to take Gertie away from you soon; will you mind?

Tommy—Not a bit. Sis and I are not friends.

Arthur—And why is that?
Tommy (heedless of Gertie's killing glances)—Oh, she boxed my ears for tipping her off the chair when she was nailing up that mistletoe in the hall.

His Official Capacity.

William Collier and a couple of other actors were dining in a hotel cafe when Collier directed his companion's attention to a very dapper-looking man with a suspiciously red nose who had just passed.

"A very prominent member of the Larchmont Yacht club," announced Collier, with a grave air.

"Is that so?" asked one of the players, who, as Collier knows, always evinces a strong interest in the doings of society.

"What is his official capacity?"

"About three gallons, I think," said Collier.—The Argonaut.

BIG MEN OF WALL STREET

Most of the Conspicuous Financiers Have Been Entirely Self-Made.

One of Wall street's leaders who was never afraid to talk in old days was Roswell P. Flower. He was a prince of Wall street fifteen or sixteen years ago, and was the delight of all who knew him. He was a strong, stocky, able-bodied man with a round, smiling face. He had a contagious laugh and impressed everyone by his good nature, his kindness of heart, Jasper writes in Leslie's.

Like Flower, Levi P. Morton had a penchant for politics, and like Flower Morton was graduated from the banking office to the governorship and the senatorship. He was in a position, also, to help his friends, and a distinguished politician who still survives, and who at that time was in far greater need of a financial lift than he is today, told with satisfaction to the little circle of friends how a tip from Morton had enabled him to make a $30,000 strike in Wall street.

Gould was a surveyor in Vermont and a mapmaker in New York; Sage, a farmer boy; Flower, born of a humble family in western New York, and Morton a merchant in a small way in Vermont in his early beginnings. The sons of rich men were not in evidence as they are today, and yet among our great financiers whose influence is far reaching in Wall street we have many, most of them, in fact, of the self-made model. Mr. Vanderlip, at the head of our greatest banking institution, was a newspaper reporter in Chicago. Mr. Hepburn, chairman of the board of the Chase National bank, the silent financier whose influence reaches far more widely than many realize, was a schoolteacher in St. Lawrence county. Mr. Wiggin, president of the Chase National bank, was a bank clerk in Boston, and Mr. Sabin, president of the Guaranty Trust company, clerk in an Albany bank. I have mentioned Mr. Brady's sons, who have succeeded him in financial circles, as has the son of Mr. John D. Rockefeller succeeded in a measure to his vast responsibility. The young Mr. Rockefeller devotes himself largely to the philanthropies established by his father. The active Rockefeller in Wall street is Mr. Percy A. Rockefeller, son of William Rockefeller, one of the ablest of our veteran captains of industry of the Standard Oil group.

THIS DOG A WORLD ROVER

Circles the Globe Twice and Acts as Lookout for Captain of American Vessel.

Land has no enchantment for Mitch, the Scotch terrier mascot of the Standard Oil tank steamship Somerset. Capt. George E. Haines, master of the vessel, reported several days ago that the dog had strayed from the ship or had been stolen, and offered $50 for his return. Just before he sailed a small boy brought the dog to the vessel. He said that he had found him wandering along the water front, the Philadelphia Public Ledger says. Mitch was rescued from the sea three years ago by Capt. Haines. Since then the dog has been around the world twice, through the war zone and in the shadow of the revolutions of Mexico and Haiti. Whenever he sights a vessel, if his master is not on deck, he runs to his cabin and barks or paws at the door.

HE HAS WOMENFOLK.

"Now, this car of yours," said the slangy person. "It looks all right, but is it there?" "Sure," replied the intermittent motorist. "Here, there and everywhere. I don't get a chance to ride in it more than once or twice a week."

SOUNDED HORSEY.

Wife—You don't try a bit to curb your temper.
Hub—Certainly not! Sounds as if you take me for a horse.

TALK WITH SHAVES.

Bill—Can you shave yourself as well as a barber can shave you?
Jill—I think so, but the trouble is I hate to talk to myself.

HIS PRACTICE.

"That young dentist always wins at our card parties."
"I suppose that is because he is accustomed to bridge work."

PRINCESS TOMORROW "THE CHRISTIAN"

Hall Caine's most dramatic love story done into a Photoplay in eight acts with Earle Williams and Edith Storey. It will be remembered that this wonderful photoplay was shown at the Princess last May to a very small audience and those seeing the picture pronounced it one of the greatest that has ever been shown in Hopkinsville. In addition to this attraction we have engaged a musical number consisting of five Spaniards in both classical and rag-time music. The price of admission will be 10c for children and 15c for adults, and this is an attraction that you will never regret the small price of admission.

LOST HOME BY FIRE

Dwelling Near Macedonia Is Quickly Reduced To Ashes.

Bud Barnett, of the Macedonia neighborhood, lost his residence and meat house by fire Monday evening. The flames started from a defective flue while supper was being prepared. Much of the contents was saved. The loss is probably $1,000. Mr. Barnett had some insurance on the building.

When you want fire, tornado, life or bond insurance in the Oldest Strongest Companies see H. D. WALLACE, office up stairs, over Anderson-Fowler Drug Store, Corner Ninth and Main.

Notice!

I wish to remind my friends that I am again back at my old stamping ground (Forbes' Hardware Store) and shall be very glad indeed to have them call to see me when in the market for anything in our line.

Respectfully,
JOE S. QUARLES.

Better Than Using Cans.
Fruits, cut and dried and packed in cardboard boxes with oiled paper, have less weight than canned preserves and are cheaper to transport.

HOWELL ITEMS.

Mr. Osborne Radford was the host of a birthday party on Friday evening. A large number of his friends were present and a most enjoyable evening was spent.

Miss Myrtle Dickerson entertained the Thimble Club at her home on Saturday afternoon. Delightful refreshments were served. Those present were Misses Crit McKnight, R. E. Coleman, Lucille Bagwell, Eleanor King, Flossie Griffith, Mary Fox Clardy, Mary Quarles, Bess Haynes and Mrs. Tom Stegar.

Miss R. E. Coleman has returned from a visit to relatives in Nashville and Lebanon.

Miss Nora Dixon has returned from Louisville, where she purchased spring goods.

Rev. McFarland, of Louisville, preached at Olivet Baptist church, Sunday morning and evening.

Mr. James McKnight was the guest of Mr. Osborne Radford for the weekend.

Miss Nell Clardy spent the weekend with Miss Sibyl Stuart Boxley, of Bell.

HOWELL HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

Wheels still running in fine shape. Last Friday's society program eclipsed all to date in some ways. The debate on "Preparedness," deserves especial mention. Affirmative—Miss Kate Crenshaw and Mr. Will Major. Negative—Miss Bernice Smithson and Mr. Fagan White. Decision in favor of the negative. Visitors always cordially invited.

The biggest event in the High School world was the birthday party of one of our honored Sophomores. On last Friday evening between the hours of 7:30 and 10:30, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Radford entertained the entire High School in honor of their son, Osborne. The large palatial home was beautifully decorated, and music, games, jokes and laughter filled the entire evening, down to the magnificent spread. The beautiful color scheme was followed out in every smallest detail. In the cake were found the ring, indicating the fate of a loyal Sophomore, the thimble, the needle and the pick, were next found, showing the different vocations of honored Freshmen and Sophs. The presentation of gifts was preluded by a suitable toast to "Funny Osborne," given by Miss Smithson.

Dr. S. M. Lowry, a venerable physician, now residing in the Oak Grove neighborhood, gave the High School a complete file of the "Outlook Magazine," for the past three years. We appreciate very much this token of love and interest and shall endeavor to use same for great benefit to our students. The above is merely a sample of the kindness and interest shown toward our High School.

Drowned In Hot Water.

Four men were drowned and many others injured at Connellsville, Pa., when the roof covering a vat of hot water in the Baltimore & Ohio railroad shops collapsed during a religious meeting. The men had assembled to hear an evangelist, and a number of them climbed to the top of the vat, which collapsed under their weight. Six were saved.

DURWOOD TWYMAN WON $5 PRIZE

Held No. 11, The First Number
Drawn From The Word Contest Box.

The reward of $5 to the lucky person finding the various mis-spelled words in the page ad run in the Kentuckian up to last Saturday, went to Durwood Twyman, the young son of Mr. J. K. Twyman. The answers handed in were all numbered and the holders given corresponding numbers. The duplicate numbers were placed in a box and after being well shaken a little boy who was present was asked to draw out a number. The first number drawn was 11 and when checked by the chart showing the mistakes it was found that the errors had all been located. This, under the rules, made it unnecessary to draw more than once, and the money was paid to young Twyman, who was present. The mistakes are pointed out below:

Ancient Mississippi Bay.

The lower valley of the Mississippi has experienced many vicissitudes during bygone ages. Geologists tell us that during the Eocene era, when the shores of the Gulf of Mexico lay considerably farther inland than at the present time, a long, baylike extension of the gulf filled the present valley of the Mississippi up to the mouth of the Ohio.

The boundaries of this ancient bay were not stationary, but shifted slowly back and forth from time to time, so that open sea was gradually replaced by brackish water, and this by swamps and peat bogs. The succeeding advance of the sea buried these old peat bogs beneath accumulations of clay, sand and sea shells.

Newspaper Blanket.

How many have ever heard of a newspaper blanket? Even people who have downy comforts and fine blankets find it impossible to keep warm on a cold night. Take two sheets—worn ones will do—have several newspapers—the more the better—tack (or baste) them two or three layers thick all over one of the sheets. Use common wrapping twine and a darning needle to fasten them. Then lay the other sheet on and tack it, here and there to the newspapers, and sew the edges roughly with a cord to make it more compact. It is impossible for air to penetrate the paper.

TO BE SEEN HERE.

Capt. S. A. Cherry expects to demonstrate his new spring-wheel for automobiles in this city soon. It is now being shown in Nashville. It has springs in the hub, that are intended to do away with the heavy expense of pneumatic tires. Capt. Cherry believes he has a fortune in it.

Leap Year Court.

A set of rules has been suggested to the San Diego Exposition as fit to govern the activities in the new Court of Leap Year. The young woman who offered them has a keen sense of humor and if for no other reason Exposition officials may consider adopting them. The suggested rules, follow:

1. The Court is strictly for business. Remember there are others waiting. Get it off your chest and move on to any of the adjoining shady paths for the hand-holding stage.
2. Don't be bashful. Remember the poor boob would probably do the same to you but is scared.
3. If your man attempts to flee, call a guard. None must escape.
4. Proposing to the same man twice in one day is forbidden. If any can resist the first time he doesn't deserve a second trial.
5. No flirting with any one else's "prospect."
6. Every dance a ladies' choice.
7. If partner insists upon "leading" you dancing, you may leave him.
8. Honeymooners welcomed. Special shady paths with arched benches for their exclusive use.
9. Class A, includes girls under 18; class B, between 18 and 24; class C, over 24; old maids over 90 referred to the citrus grove across the street.

Keith-Barth.

Dr. David Randall Keith and Miss Vonda B. Barth, both of Louisville, were married Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock. Dr. Keith is a brother of Dr. J. P. Keith, of this city, and is a young physician of fine promise.

Sisters Wed Brothers.

Vincennes, Ind., March 8.—For the first time in late history of Vincennes a wedding by which two sisters became the wives of two brothers was solemnized here last night. Misses Vivian Carolina Ebner and Laurine Catharine Ebner, sisters, became the wives of Messrs. Herbert Alpheus Glover and George William Glover, brothers. The ceremony was performed at the brides' home, Rev. Eugene Simon, pastor of St. Agnes' Catholic church, Evansville, officiating. The affair was one of the biggest society events of the season. The brides are the daughters of the late Joseph L. Ebner, wealthy ice manufacturer, and are graduates of several colleges, both being prominent in society circles.

SMITH-REAGAN.

Mr. A. P. Smith and Miss Lisle Reagan were married at Mobile, Ala., March 2. Mr. Smith is a prominent young railroad man, a son of Mrs. Katherine B. Smith, of this city. The bride is a lovely girl.

There is a persistent rumor that 20 or more German warships have left Kiel and are cruising in the North sea.

Youth and Old Age.

My little niece Gracie was sitting on grandmother's lap. As she was rocking to and fro baby kept staring into her face, and after a few minutes of silence she said: "Grandma, you aren't so very new, are you?"—Chicago Tribune.

Hides of sea lions are being used for leather by Canadians.

FORBES CONTEST CHATTER

Heard about Forbes Six Big Contests? If you haven't you are doubtless the only living soul in this part of the State who hasn't and it is high time you were getting busy, reading the papers and finding out all about it.

The fight is getting warm. Women, men and children are after one or the other of the SIX BIG PRIZES and every contestant firmly believes and says he will be leading in his class when the bell rings and the prizes are awarded.

Some are after the PONY, BUGGY AND HARNESS.

Others are after the MOGUL WAGON.

Some place their faith in the ASFALTSATE SHINGLES.

Some pin their hopes to the PAINT CONTEST.

The BATH TUB contest is also splashing.

The ladies are making time in the MAJESTIC RANGE contest.

Don't wait for someone to nominate you. These SIX BIG CONTESTS are open to the world at large, regardless of age, color, sex or nationality. All you have to do is to save your CASH SALES TICKETS. They are good for votes, one vote for each penny's worth purchased from us. Within thirty days after date of your cash sale ticket, present at our Main Office and you will be given a voting certificate for the number of votes as represented by your cash sales purchases.

REMEMBER: This is a FORBES CONTEST exclusively. We are promoting it ourselves, so you can be assured that everything will be strictly on the square. There will be no vote selling, nor schemes of any sort. No one, not even ourselves, will know the standing of any contestant until the final count is made. You have nothing to lose and all to gain, SO WHY NOT TRY.
